

Every year brings potential problems: pressure from western bean cutworm in corn, sudden death syndrome in soybeans, drought stress, you name it. Pioneer sales professionals are backed by hundreds of scientists and hands-on local agronomy experts. They help find the right combination of genes, traits and practices to overcome all the obstacles and help you place the right product on the right acre. Using state-of-the-art tools like the Pioneer FIT[®] Mapping System, Pioneer representatives factor in each grower's needs for genetic stress tolerance, insect protection traits, weed management and — ultimately — yield.
